U.S. Order Delays Wilson's Return to Berlin

AMBASSADOR ASSIGNED TO CAPITAL POST

Diplomat Becomes Consultant On Nazi Affairs, Acting Secretary Says.

GOES TO WARM SPRINGS

Meets Roosevelt Tomorrow For Report on Situation In Germany.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(INS)—Informed by International News Service that Ambassador Hugh Wilson would remain in the United States indefinitely and be re-assigned to the state department, the German foreign office today indicated that similar procedure would be adopted upon the return here of Dr. Hans Dieckhoff, German ambassador to the United States.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Acting Secretary Welles of the state department said today Hugh Wilson, who arrived here today from his post as ambassador to Berlin, would be assigned to the state department for an indefinite period.

Welles said Wilson would take up duty as a consultant as soon as he returns from a conference over the week-end with President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga.

Welles said Wilson's duties would be to advise state department officials on German affairs.

Permanent Transfer?

Although no further information was given, it was indicated this action might be preliminary to Wilson's permanent transfer from his Berlin post.

Indications at the state department are that the decision whether he shall return to Germany has not yet been made and possibly will not be made for several weeks.

It is probable that the German ambassador, Hans Dieckhoff, who sailed this week for Berlin, will not return until Wilson's status is clarified.

Wilson's recall already has been interpreted in some quarters as a stern presidential disapproval of the latest outburst of anti-Jewish sentiment in Germany.

Wilson arrived this morning from Berlin, via New York, and went immediately into conference with the acting secretary of state.

Welles, down early to meet the envoy, was in consultation with

COMPLICATIONS FOLLOW COPPER APPOINTMENT

Mayor Tells Chief to Have 'No Part' In Supervising Work Of Juvenile Officer.

The designation of Harry Copper, former city patrolman, by Judge C. J. Anderson as a special county officer in the Probate court today had brought about a series of complications.

In the first place Mayor Claude M. Hunter took a definite stand against the city police department assuming any responsibility in the supervision of the activities of the special juvenile officer.

Mayor Hunter said today that he had instructed Police Chief Meade K. Bates that he was to have "no part" in supervising the officer Judge Anderson has detailed to work out of the chief's office.

"That is a responsibilty that belongs entirely to the probate court," Hunter said.

Won't Assume Responsibility.

"We will be glad to co-operate to the fullest extent with the proper authorities to eliminate all cases of juvenile delinquency that come to our attention, but the city is not going to assume any responsibility for Copper," the mayor added.

TAKE 'HOLIDAY'

Armour Employes Sympathize With Stockyard Strikers.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Approximately 1,100 employes at the Armour plant took a "holiday" today in a gesture of sympathy with striking livestock handlers as federal conciliators met with union stockyards and transit company and Congress of Industrial Organizations union officials in an effort to settle a week-long labor dispute.

Handlers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor voted unanimously to return to work immediately at the stockyards where the CIO union called a strike last Monday, charging that the company had failed to bargain in good faith. The company said it would have no need of the AFL handlers until Monday.

The Armour handlers, members of the Stockhandlers Local 347 (beef division), a CIO affiliate, voted the "holiday" in protest against "direct shipments" to the Armour plant and as a sympathetic gesture.

SHIFTING WINDS SLOW UP FIRES

Fight Weary West Coast Areas Cheered as Blazes Subside In Some Sections.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES — Shifting, capricious winds, which for three days alternately have fanned, then almost halted the spread of southern California's two disastrious forest and brush blazes, today appeared to be aiding fatigued fire fighters in the Santa Monica and San Bernardino mountains.

Neither conflagration was under control, but officials who late yesterday feared additional millions of dollars damage was inevitable, took encouragement from reports of progress in several areas.

Most dangerous point apparently was in upper Mandeville canyon, in the Santa Monica mountains west of Los Angeles. Ralph J. Scott, city fire chief, ordered concentration of 800 men along a six-mile front to keep the blaze from breaking across Mulholland highway and into the fertile San Fernando valley.

Only spot fires remained nearer the seacoast in Topanga and Las Flores canyons.

The sheriff's office announced that 80 residences in the two canyons and adjacent areas of Las Tunas and Big Rock were destroyed, with a property loss approximating $150,000.

DEFIANCE — (INS) — All able-bodied relief clients in this city who refuse to work for the city to pay for grocery orders will be sentenced to the Toledo workhouse.

This was the edict today of Mayor Joe C. Krutsch. It was issued after the mayor gave Leroy Goodwin a 60-day suspended sentence. Goodwin went hunting instead of responding to a call to work for the city, according to the mayor.

NO ALTERNATIVE

So Czechs Bow Again, Give In To Poland's Demands.

PRAGUE — (INS) — The government of the Autonomous Slovak province of Czechoslovakia today was ready to cede to Poland a strip of territory immediately, to terminate an outbreak of bloody warfare along the frontier.

The decision was communicated to Warsaw by the Slovak cabinet a few hours after an announcement by the Polish government that it was already sending troops to occupy the Czaca district by force.

Under terms of an agreement reached between Poland and Czechoslovakia following the Munich accord, the territory was to be given up on December 1. Faced with the threat of warfare, however, the Slovaks decided on evacuation of the region within two days. Prague consented to the new plan.

Before the Slovaks announced the decision to give up the territory immediately, battles were reported in progress along a six-mile front near Skoter.

PLANS $100,000 NEW APARTMENT

Contractor Expects to Start Work on 33-Suite Building On W. First In 30 Days.

Work will be started within 30 days on a 33-suite apartment building, representing an investment of close to $100,000, at West First and Blymyer streets, Rex A. Zediker, Mansfield contractor, announced today.

The apartment building, which will be one of the largest in the city, will be built by the Zediker Masonry company and operated by Zediker himself. Brick and tile will be used in construction, with the suites furnished except for the living rooms, Zediker said. It will be two stories high.

The building will be in three units which will form an L-shaped structure, with frontage on both streets. An 80 by 100 foot court will fill in the triangle on the corner and between the two wings.

Zediker said he planned to complete the entire building in slightly more than a year, erecting a nine-suite wing first.

The structure will be erected at the southwest corner on a 125 by 250 foot property purchased by Zediker from Harry S. Black. There are no buildings on the lot.

"The apartment will supply an increasing demand for three, four and five-room suites at moderate prices," Zediker said.

LORAIN—(AP)—Mayor George P. Bretz, 72, a Democratic party leader here for a quarter of a century, died last night after an illness of more than a year.

Bretz, sometimes called "the watchdog of the city treasury," became mayor last Jan. 1. He had served three terms as city councilman.

OHIO WAGE LAW?

Columbus Hears Legislation To Be Sought at Session.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—State wage-hour legislation, applying to business within Ohio the same standards that the new federal law fixes for inter-state business, will be sought in the coming legislature, it was learned here today.

Especially affected would be retail stores and local service industries, now entirely outside the scope of the federal wage-hour law. The measure was expected to have support from organized labor and opposition from employers' groups.

As in the federal law, the state proposal would start with requirements for a 25-cent hourly minimum wage and a 44-hour week, with time and one-half for overtime, and would alter this gradually to arrive at a final standard of 40 cents and 40 hours.

PONTIFF SHOWS GAIN, CONFERS WITH CARDINAL

Pope's Condition 'More or Less Normal,' Vatican Physicians Say.

(By Associated Press)

VATICAN CITY — An official communique said today that Pope Pius XI had "returned to a more or less normal condition" after a heart attack which had caused grave concern.

The communique said:

"The Holy Father passed a calm night, resting without any disturbance. The improvement which was noted yesterday evening continued, happily, so that this morning His Holiness was returned to a more or less normal condition."

Vatican sources said the 81-year-old pontiff, although still weak, was able to get up from his bed and receive Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state.

Carried To Chamber.

He first received Cardinal Pacelli in his bedroom, sitting in an armchair which made breathing easier. He then had himself carried in the chair from his bedroom to his official audience chamber on the third floor of the palace where he continued his conversation with the secretary of state.

The communique said the pope's chief physician, Dr. Aminta Milani, "taking into consideration the state of weakness resulting from yesterday's attack advised several days of rest before the august pontiff should resume his customary rhythm of life."

"Therefore," it added, "his holiness limited himself this morning to receiving only the cardinal secretary of state."

Cardinal Pacelli's visit was for the purpose of getting authorization to receive a group of newlyweds and a Hungarian pilgrimage to which the pope was to have granted an audience.

The communique brought reassurance to the thousands who had been concerned over the pope's condition yesterday and last night. Many had feared that his advanced age and weakened condition might make it difficult for him to recover.

POLICE SEARCH ON AFTER HE STRIKES AGAIN

Two Women Rout Youth After He Hits One, Tries to Drag Her Down Side Street.

SAVES $100 IN POCKETBOOK

Victim Struck In Face Needs Medical Aid; Slugging Third In 4 Days.

A youthful colored purse snatcher who struck for the third time in four days last night, but was routed by two women after he had slugged one of them, was the object of an intensive police search today.

He fled last night, shortly after 10 o'clock, from South Main street near Newlon place, after he had accosted Mrs. Nellie Staiger, 37 Glessner avenue, and Mrs. Ethel Gump, 240 Sturges avenue.

Holds on to Purse.

Mrs. Gump told police that the youth grabbed her, and started to drag her down a side street, at the same time attempting to wrest her purse away.

When she screamed and resisted, she said, the youth struck her in the face, breaking her glasses and knocking her to the ground.

She still clung to her purse, however, and her screams together with those of her companion, put the would-be bandit to flight, leaving Mrs. Gump lying on the sidewalk. She said her assailant ran west on Newlon place.

Tells of Assault.

Mrs. Gump could not be reached today, but Mrs. Staiger gave a graphic account of the attempted theft.

Mrs. Staiger said Mrs. Gump had more than $100 in her purse.

"I was walking on the outside of the walk," Mrs. Staiger related today, "neigther of us saw the boy come up. I guess he came from behind us.

"He grabbed at Mrs. Gump's pocketbook and pulled her off balance on the icy walk. She fell to the ground but hung on to her purse. Then he began striking her in the face with one hand.

"We both screamed—I guess we were too excited to do anything else and it all happened so quickly.

"The noise we made must have frightened him away. He ran west on Newlon place. We called a cab from a nearby house and went home. Mrs. Gump had to go to a doctor to have her eye treated. She must have gotten a hard blow," Mrs. Staiger said.

She said the boy did not seem

GETS RESPONSE

The board will again discuss the Ohio situation at a meeting early next week. The board withheld October pension funds from the state because of alleged violation of social security regulations by the Ohio division.

Bricker pledged that he would put old age pension administration in Ohio on a basis acceptable to the board when he takes office in January.

COLD GREETING

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa. —(U.P.)— Raymond Steiner, 19, was back in Blair county jail today—safe from the cold and snow that forced him to surrender after six days of freedom gained by scaling the jail wall with the aid of a curved pipe.

FUGITIVES HIDE

London Convicts Believed to Have Fled to Hideout.

COLUMBUS — (INS)—Five prisoners who Thanksgiving day fled the London prison farm after slugging a guard and knifing a trusty today apparently had made good their escape.

G. O. P. In 6 Counties To Back Shaffer For District Road Job

The Richland county Republican executive committee today endorsed Murray D. Shaffer, former Mansfield service-safety director, for appointment as state highway engineer in Division No. 3, which includes Richland and seven other counties.

Shaffer, who needs the endorsement of Republican organizations in at least five of the eight counties, and is virtually assured of the backing of six of the counties, appears as the leading candidate for the division highway post, Ralph M. Hardy, county executive chairman, said.

Hardy said he planned to submit the county endorsements to Governor-elect John W. Bricker early next week.

"Shaffer is not seeking the appointment, but he has consented to accept if he is named," Hardy said. "We are working for his appointment because we believe he is the most logical man in the division for the post," he added.

Shaffer resigned as service-safety director about 18 months ago to accept a job as field engineer with the Portland Cement association with headquarters in Toledo.

Crestline Happy Over Word Of Transfer of Rail Work

CRESTLINE—Residents of this community were smiling today over a piece of bright business news.

The news was that the Pennsylvania railroad will center all heavy locomotive repair work on the Pittsburgh-Chicago division here. The change was expected to mean that approximately 50 families would be moved to Crestline, probably after the first of the year.

Crestline shops of the road now service 57 Pennsylvania locomotives. The change will mean that about 40 more locomotives of the heavy passenger type will also be serviced here. That work is now being done in Pittsburgh and Chicago.

The railroad operates extensive shops here and owns sufficient land to accommodate any additional buildings that may be required.

On receipt of news of the transfer of the work, and the anticipated influx of workmen, Mayor L. F. Waldbauer yesterday called a meeting of business men to discuss the housing problem that the change will create.

She will speak on "European Merry-Go-Round" at the Ohio theater Dec. 1 at 11 a. m. Luncheon will follow at 1 p. m. at the Women's Club. Reservations are being accepted at the club until Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Fuldheim has lectured in Mansfield a number of times before the federation, for the Temple Emmanuel Sisterhood, and for other study and cultural organizations. She makes her home in Cleveland, and in the past 12 years has conducted over 1,000 lectures in that city. She travels in Europe each summer gathering first-hand information for her extensive discourses on the European situation.

Mrs. Charles Brown of the federation, and E. D. Gibson of the P. T. A. are responsible for bringing Mrs. Fuldheim to Mansfield for the two lectures Thursday.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Nov. 27.

Sunday's horoscope favors relations with superiors or those in high places who may best be approached for favors or support, rather than commonplace influences. Spiritual, emotional and cultural affairs of a deep, secret or curious nature, possibly romantic feminine intrigues or secret affairs, are under excellent auguries.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year in which rather singular, secret or unusual circumstances may come to the front and have direct bearing on their prestige, popularity and success. While there are testimonies of advancement and favors from superiors, the emphasis seems placed on peculiar, intriguing or secret situations in the affectional life.

A child born on this day may be capable and ambitious, attracting its superiors who should be helpful in increasing its prestige and personal popularity

For Monday, Nov. 28.

Monday's astrological forecast is a rather contradictory one. Much may be gained by direct and drastic action, while at the same time such tactics and aggressiveness might precipitate defeat and devastation. The sudden and irregular might prove upsetting to very important projects, whereas tact, cleverness and approach through tacit understanding and quiet methods might assure major advantages.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of great promise for putting over new matters of prime interest and importance. The energies may be keyed to such high pressure that overzealous tactics might prove more detrimental than effective.

A child born on this day may be aggresesive, high-powered and ambitious. It may try to take all before it by stress and storm, whereas subtler tactics might prove quite as successful.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

We both sent a final, hurried goodbye gesture to the boys. Then she whisked me around with our backs to the train, and we hurried away.

"Now where?" she said, when we had reached the waiting room. Then she gave my arm, which she still held, a significant squeeze.

"Pipe Sherlock!" she muttered. "On your right."

"I see him," I murmured back. "And we won't dodge him for this trip."

"Yes, better give him a break for once," she murmured with an impish grin, and our taxi trip back to the Lansfield held the knowledge that the detective was right behind us in another taxi.

She did not speak at all until we had reached our suite, and then only in courteous salute to Miss Whitlock and an apology for taking me away into her room.

When she had locked the door, she faced me tensely.

"Tell me, Auntie Madge," she said. "What was the matter with Hank in the theater? Did he faint dead away? I was afraid he had, but I didn't dare look at him for fear of attracting attention to him. And, of course, I knew you were on the job and would call me if you needed me."

"No, he didn't faint," I said. But before I spoke again I drew up chairs facing each other.

"Sit down, dear, and pull yourself together!" I commanded. You're much more overwrought about this than the occasion warrants. Hank evidently was more affected by that torture scene than any of the rest of us, so much so that for an instant he had swooned. But he recovered his poise very quickly. You didn't see anything unusual in his behavior after that first slump of his, did you?"

"No," she said with a wintry smile. "He appeared to be tied up in the same stitches we were at that farce."

She stopped and looked at me with somber, attentive inquiry in her face.

Any Questions?

"Yes, dear," I prompted. "Are there any questions you wish to ask me?"

"Yes," she answered, "there are." Then she lapsed into silence again, unwilling to hasten her confidence.

"I can't understand Hank's being affected that way at that torture scene," she said. "I should have thought, instead, that—"

"Tell me," she said at last, and her voice was suddenly strained and raucous, "do you think there's any real hope of Hank's snapping out of this?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

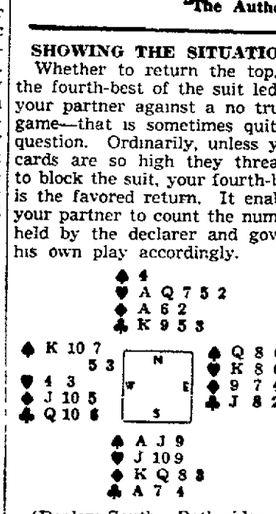
"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOWING THE SITUATION

Whether to return the top, or the fourth-best of the suit led by your partner against a no trump game—that is sometimes quite a question. Ordinarily, unless your cards are so high they threaten to block the suit, your fourth-best is the favored return. It enables your partner to count the number held by the declarer and govern his own play accordingly.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

One Diamond was South's opening call on this deal, to which North responded with 1-Heart. South then bid 1-No Trump, North 2-Hearts, South 2-No Trump and North 3-No Trump.

Against this bidding, West led the spade 5, East covered with the Q and as declarer saw no hope in holding up, he went in with the A. His next move was to finesse the heart J, which lost to East's K. East then returned the spade 8. South covered with the 9 and West won with the 10. Not being sure that the K would drop the J and preferring to put East in the lead to come through South, West switched to the diamond J. This play enabled South to cash ten tricks instead of being set.

East should have returned the spade 2 to his partner to show his length in the suit and then when the K was played by West, he should have thrown his 8 so as to unblock for West.

ROMANCE, INC. + + +

By OREN ARNOLD

(Copyright, 1938)

READ THIS FIRST

Sara Sue Davis, attractive young widow, with the aid of her mother-in-law, rents a cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, in preparation for the launching of a unique business venture. Bob Towne, football end and campus hero, and some of the other students, are arrested by the new sign in front of the Davis cottage announcing a "COUNSEL IN ROMANCE." Sara Sue explains her Cottage Plan to a group of students and finds them greatly interested. Bob Towne even asks her for a date. Against her better judgment, Sara Sue goes dancing with Senior Towne. She enjoys the evening, but as he leaves her he kisses her impetuously. When an insignificant-looking freshman, Worthington Gurley, enrolls in her club, Sara Sue is amused and interested. That evening a girl in a car stops in front of her house and insults the pretty widow. The caller proves to be Peaches Pomeroy, a senior, who has been accepted as Bob Towne's girl the previous college year. After 99 students had joined her Plan, Sara Sue is routed from her bath one night to find another caller on her doorstep in the pouring rain.

CHAPTER 7

When Sara Sue Davis slipped on her negligee at 11 p. m. to answer her front door bell, she had no intention of admitting anyone. She imagined it might be an emergency call. Possibly a telegram. Or—or—anything. She peeked through her tiny window to see the bow-legged man standing in the rain. Then she unlatched the door and opened it a crack.

"The cottage is closed for the night," she told him.

"Oh, please—"

She did not know him. But he held out his hand in supplication.

He was well dressed. He was youngish, but the horn-rimmed glasses he wore made him appear older; they and his strained expression. He seemed to be in some sort of trouble. He spoke, haltingly at first. Almost a whisper.

"Please, I beg of you—I must see you! You are Mrs. Davis?"

Sara Sue had a normal curiosity. This obviously was no student.

"Yes, I am Mrs. Davis?"

"Mrs.—ah—Sara Sue Davis? Ah—Incorporated?"

"Incorporated," nodded Sara Sue. It was interesting her more and more.

"I realize it is quite late, but please do not take umbrage. I am Dr. Holgate."

"Oh yes, Dr. Holgate."

He looked it. One of the new professors. That classified him, all right. Sara Sue smiled a trifle.

"I—ah, I must—I came to avail myself of your confidential services, madam. You have no idea how urgent—"

"Oh, but Dr. Holgate, it is late. The cottage is closed for the night. In fact, I was just retiring when you rang. And besides—"

"Oh, please! I beg of you!"

"—besides, my memberships are for students and are all taken and—"

"Oh, my dear Mrs. Davis! All? Am I, then, too late?"

Sara Sue studied the man closely. Was this some sort of gag? Was Bob Towne behind this? She opened the door an inch wider to inspect him.

He could be nothing but sincere. She restrained an urge to laugh at him, for he did look comical there in the rain. All at once it dawned on her that she was being rather ungracious, inhospitable. The rain and wind were cold.

"Please step in for a moment, anyway," she invited. "No, not quite all my memberships are taken. But Dr. Holgate, I had no idea that any of the faculty would be interested. I mean—"

"It is most irregular, madam. I can readily understand your astonishment. But—when one is in dire need, one searches for any panacea. And I—I—"

"Yes?"

"Frankly, Mrs. Davis, I am a somewhat lonely man. That is, I am not wholly gregarious. But I have—I have—well, I am in need of such counsel as you advertise."

If the man had not been so intent, so obviously straining for his confession, Sara Sue should surely have laughed out loud at him. But Sara Sue had been reared a lady.

"If you mean that you wish to meet some friendly, companionable people, Mr. Holgate, I am sure that is just splendid. And I should be glad to introduce—"

"Oh, no! No, no! Or maybe, yes. But immediately, madam, the need is much more urgent. The fact is, Mrs. Davis, I wish guidance in romance. I am—ha, ha, myself in love!"

The sigh of relief was so comical, the confession so obviously an embarrassment, that Sara Sue did laugh at him then. But she promptly apologized.

"Please come in, Dr. Holgate! I should not have kept you standing here in the entrance way. But you realize it really is rather late, and I was hardly expecting such a call!"

"To be sure. Thank you, indeed."

She left him then, and went to her kitchen. She had a hunch that Cleopatra and Calculus might have left some hot coffee, and in that she was right. Dr. Holgate, chilled by the storm, accepted his cup gratefully. He advised Mrs. Davis, from a somewhat pompous height, which did not frighten Sara Sue, that she was a most gracious hostess. She smiled her thanks.

Any man will expand spiritually when his stomach is warmed. Sara Sue Davis is just one of a billion or so observing girls who know it. A cup of coffee and a dish of cookies have worked many a miracle since time began.

Dr. Holgate welcomed the food as something for his nervous hands to attend to while he tried to approach the details of his call.

"So you are in love, Dr. Holgate," Sara Sue resumed presently. "I think that it is wonderful, sir! May I congratulate you. And I am honored that you think I may help."

"Then I may join your—your Plan?"

He paused, cup in mid-air, for her answer.

"Well—" she hadn't meant exactly that.

"Please—I will pay anything, any fee. I have quite a good salary, my dear Mrs. Davis. I could pay double, or triple, or—"

She laughed again.

After all, why not, she asked herself. She was serving Rice. She had expected to chaperone and guide the students only, but if a faculty man really needed and wanted her help, couldn't he be accepted, too? Also, she thought, cannily, faculty approval should not harm her in a business way; the faculty controls a school.

"I see no reason why not, Dr. Holgate. But the fee will be just the same. Three dollars a month, in advance. Remember that I promise little. I do promise to give members private advice if they ask it, but I do not operate a matrimonial bureau or anything of the sort. I fact, I hadn't expected—"

"No, I daresay not, Mrs. Davis. But as I indicated, I am a lonely man. I have several degrees. A doctorate. I am well schooled. I have had no time for love, nor thought of it. But now—it has come! May I speak quite frankly?"

"Please do. It shall be in strict confidence."

"Oh! Yes. Yes, by all means. Well, then I was asked to an entertainment, a reception or something. It seemed advisable to go—this is my first faculty position anywhere, you realize—and she was there! She paid quite deliberate attention to me!"

He turned toward Sara Sue in his enthusiasm. She nodded.

"She was tastefully attired. She wore—I am told you ladies are interested in such things — she wore a black, ah—" He paused to swallow, and think.

"I know," Sara Sue said, quietly. "Black. With a touch of gold."

"Yes! You know her?"

"No, sir, but it's a good guess, always," she smiled again.

"Oh! Doubtless. And she was quite interest—"

"In you and your work," supplied Sara Sue.

"Yes! My dear madam, you are a woman of remarkable acumen!"

"Please proceed, Dr. Holgate."

"There is no more. Except that—that—well, frankly I am deeply smitten of her. I have experienced no such sensations since my youth. I am now well along toward thirty, I fear. And I am convinced that human destiny includes pairing. In short, marriage, Mrs. Davis. Of course I dared not speak to her of this. I am not of her station. I mean to say, she moves in quite a different sphere, I dare say. She was so utterly at ease. So beautiful. So charming. But, Mrs. Davis — I must impress her somehow! I must!"

Sara Sue could tell that he was desperately in earnest, and she felt a quick surge of sympathy. She herself had known poignant love. She understood.

"I promise to help you in every way I can, Dr. Holgate," she assured him, quietly, earnestly. "Love is—is the grandest thing in the world!"

"Yes! Oh, yes. And thank you!"

"Don't you think," suggested Sara Sue quietly, her curiosity mounting along with her interest, "that it is about time to mention her name?"

"By all means," agreed Professor Holgate. "In strict confidence, of course. I place myself utterly in your hands. Her name is Miss Pomeroy, Miss Geraldine Pomeroy, nicknamed, I believe, Peaches."

"Storm Over Bengal."

England's lancers at Bengal are the subject again of a movie plot, this time in "Storm Over Bengal," which brings Rochelle Hudson, Patric Knowles and Richard Cromwell to the Park theater in a story of the English army in India. The film is a new one and is being shown here for the first time, opening with a midnight matinee tonight. On the same bill is a reissue of a Carole Lombard picture of several years ago, "Love Before Breakfast," with Preston Foster and Cesar Romero.

The picture, with "Cipher Bureau," opens at a midnight matinee tonight at the Majestic.

It shows the handsome star as a prize fighter who falls in love with the daughter of a big-shot racket man, played by Edward Arnold. A second film is "I'll Give A Million," with Warner Baxter and Marjorie Weaver.

FILES ANSWER IN $5,000 SUIT

Taxi Company Owner Denies Driver Responsible for Accident.

Answer to a suit for $5,000 personal damages had been filed today in common pleas court by George Reichert, manager of the Service Taxi company, who denies that his driver was responsible for the accident involved in the case.

The suit was filed several weeks ago by Miss Margaret Ellen Reed, Mansfield, who contended she suffered injuries when struck by one of the defendant's cabs in June, 1937, in Mansfield. Miss Reed, a minor, filed the action thorugh Walter G. Reed.

In his answer, Reichert asks the court to dismiss the plaintiff's petition on the grounds that her injuries were the result of her own negligence.

By CHARLES MARTIN

FOR the third consecutive year, Bill Wilkins, Mansfield Madison's brilliant wingman, has been picked at an end position on The News-Journal All-Mid-State league grid eleven by league coaches.

The speedy pass-snatcher along with Beryl Balliett, Bellville high's great backfield ace, were the only players to receive the unanimous vote of the coaches.

Only three players, Wilkins, Balliett and Gene Harmon, who won the Ohio individual scholastic scoring championship with 146 points, were carryovers from last year's team. Bill Wilkins was elected honorary captain of the team by virtue of his selection on the team for three straight years.

Madison's high-scoring Rams, who dropped only one game in 10 starts, that to Mt. Vernon, a Class A club, placed six on the first team, with once-beaten Bellville adding three and Loudonville and Mt. Gilead one apiece.

Battle for Back Posts

The battle for the backfield berths was staged between Madison and Bellville. Both aggregations possessed a wealth of ball luggers and the fight for positions on the first team was exceedingly close.

Russ Sheriff, who romped from the signal-calling post for Bellville, and Joe Miller, the Rams' all-around star, completed the backfield due to their great performances.

Besides furnishing the blocking to make Harmon's long runs possible, Miller was the leading placekicker in the league. He converted 24 out of 32 placements. His defensive play in backing up the line was a standout of every game. He also shared the punting duties with Harmon, booted most of the kick-offs and was a great line-smasher.

Sheriff, quarterback of the mythical eleven, was the spark of Coach Royd Hodges' tricky reverses. He supplied his share of blocking and was always a dangerous threat when carrying the ball. His direction of the team was excellent.

Harmon's selection speaks for itself. The 160-pound slippery-hipped youngster, depended on his teammates' superb blocking to break him into the clear, but once past the line of scrimmage it was almost impossible to bring him down. His bullet-like passes provided a large share of his club's deceptive attack.

Coach Al Fendrick's club annexed the state scoring laurels, with Harmon contributing nearly half of the 320 points.

A powerful ball carrier, Balliett, 180-pound fullback, frequently ripped the enemy's lines to shreds. He could block and kick with the best of them.

Bill Wilkins' ability to snag aerials out of his rivals arms made him a standout in this department. He was quick in going down under punts and stopping kickoff returns, and he had no peer in breaking up opponents' interference on sweeps. He also was the state's leading scorer among linemen, amassing a total of 94 points. He scored 15 touchdowns and four extra points on passes.

On the other end is Paul Martin of Bellville, who nosed out Madison's Doug DeNero. Martin rated almost on a par with Wilkins in the pass receiving class, and was a fine defensive player.

Robert Wilkins, Bill's twin brother, was the popular choice for the snapper-back post, with Buzzard of Loudonville running a close second. Bob's spectacular tackling and unerring passes assured him a spot on the eleven.

Philip Krause, Covert and Beardsley of Loudonville and Melvin McClelland of Mt. Gilead were in the thick of the fight for the tackle berths.

Awarded Tackles.

Krause and McClelland were awarded the positions because of their powerful defensive play. Both were large, but could break through an opponents' line with lightning-like speed to smear plays before they got started.

Mel Harner and Walter Weimer of Madison came through to win the guard spots over Ruhl of Bellville and Lewis Danison of the Rams. Harner was particularly outstanding for the Rams, being able, on a moment's notice, to shift into the backfield. Weimer copped the other post by his great play both defensively and in pulling out of the line to run interference.

Bantams Play In Cleveland

Tackle Strong Skippies At Edison Field.

Encouraged by their first victory of the season, the Adams' Bantamweights travel to Cleveland Sunday to meet the Eagles' Skippies at Thomas Edison field at 2:30 p. m.

The Cleveland eleven is as famous in bantamweight circles as the Akron Red Peppers were some years ago. Until beaten early this season, the Skippies compiled a string of 46 games without a defeat over a five-year period.

In the 60 games since their organization, the Skippies have accumulated 1170 points and to their opponents' 86.

They battled to a scoreless tie with the Wooster Harris Paints, which whipped the Mansfield team, 20 to 0, last week, in a Thanksgiving Day game.

Coach Harry Dandakis said today that his club is in splendid shape for the invasion, and expects the midgets to put up a strong battle.

Dean Picks Deans On All-Star Team

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Dizzy Dean, appearing in a vaudeville act at a local theater, modestly placed himself and "my brother Paul" on his own all-star baseball team today.

Diz, after assuring his audience there no longer was any need to worry about his pitching arm, was asked to name an all-star team of players he has seen since he broke into the major leagues. For the first eight positions he named:

First base—Lou Gehrig, New York Yankees; 2nd — Charley Gehringer, Detroit, or Frankie Frisch, former manager of the St. Louis Cards; ss — Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh; 3rd—Stan Hack, Chicago Cubs; lf—Joe Medwick, Cardinals; cf—Joe DiMaggio, Yankees; rf—Mel Ott, New York Giants; c—Manager Gabby Hartnett, Cubs.

Asked about pitchers, Diz replied: "Well, I'll have to name myself first. And if I'm first, my brother Paul must be second."

Ed Willard Named On Second Team

Ed Willard of Mansfield was selected on the International News service second All-Ohio conference football team announced today. He was an end on the John Carroll eleven.

The first team consists of Snider, Denison, le; Campbell, Capital, lt; Nichols, Mt. Union, lg; Schulte, Denison, c, Fiordalis, Case, rg; Cunahan, Wooster, rt, Parks, Oberlin, re, Keel, Ohio Northern, qb; Henderson, Wooster, lh; Arsenault, John Carroll, rh; Young, John Carroll, fb.

Reserves, Speed, Timing and Fancy Backs Make Notre Dame Team Best Since Rockne's

By DILLON GRAHAM

NEW YORK—Notre Dame has waited a long spell for a Rockne disciple to come along and build a gridiron masterpiece that would compare with some of the Old Master's best. It looks as though Elmer Layden has finally riveted together such a football machine.

The Irish under Layden, fullback on Knute Rockne's greatest backfield, the "Four Horsemen" of 1924, marched to seven straight triumphs over strong southern, eastern and midwestern foes.

Not since Rockne's last edition in 1930 has a Notre Dame eleven accomplished an unbeaten drive. The Irish, gaining momentum, poise and confidence with every succeeding conquest, have only Southern California between them and a perfect record.

This Irish team, like those that Rockne created, depends on quick-breaking thrusts to startle and subdue its rivals.

Perhaps no other team in the land has the reserve strength owned by Layden's. The Irish are three- or four-deep at every spot.

Backs to Spare.

In Steve Sitko, Lou Zontini, Joe Thesing and Harry Stevenson or Bob Saggau, the Irish have a backfield that can compare with the famed Layden-Crowley-Miller-Stuhldreher unit.

The Thin Man, as Layden is known, has three fine fullbacks in Thesing, Tarzen Piepul and Mario Tonelli. He has crack "scat backs" in Ben Sheridan and Ed Simonich. Hofer, Morrison, McGannon and Burnell are other backs who can keep the Irish attack on fire.

A nervy Irishman leads this Fighting Irish team—Capt. Jim McGoldrick, the best of Notre Dame's running guards. Ed Beinor is a bulwark at one tackle notch, while Earl Brown and J Kelly are a pair of fine ends.

Layden's line—or lines—has (or have) been outplayed but once, by Carnegie Tech.

Fumbling and a slowness in getting the offensive underway have handicapped Notre Dame. The Irish fumbled more than 20 times in the first seven games.

Quick Thrusts Bring Scores.

Sudden thrusts have accounted for more than three-fourths of the Notre Dame touchdowns:—

Zontini broke loose on one of those nicely-timed off-tackle plays with perfect blocking and raced 84 yards against Minnesota. Saggau caught the Gophers napping with two long passes and the score was 19-0.

Two quick punches, a 47-yard pass and a 68-yard punt return, beat Illinois, 14-6.

After a field day against Kansas 52-0, the Irish bogged down against Georgia Tech but capitalized on the Southerners' errors to win, 14-6

The Irish nearly met their Waterloo against Carnegie Tech. The Scots ripped the Irish line and Notre Dame couldn't get its attack started for three periods. Finally an official's "wrong down" boner gave them the break they needed and they won, 7-0.

Continued application of power finally wore down Army in the last quarter and Notre Dame won on runs of 35 and 45 yards and on a 48-yard pass, 19-7. In whipping Navy easily, 15-0, Notre Dame showed its only long march of the year, a 79-yard drive.

Notre Dame scored 149 points in eight games against 26 for its foes. It made 69 first downs to 59, gained 1,616 yards rushing to 689 and completed 12 or 33 passes for 273 yards. Its rivals completed 35 of 116 passes for 351 yards.

Coach Elmer Layden talks things over with the best backfield Notre Dame has had since Knute Rockne's 1930 quartet. Fullback Joe Thesing (left), Halfback Lou Zontini, Layden, Halfback Harry Stevenson and Quarterback Steve Sitko.

Captain-Guard Jim McGoldrick (left) and Tackle Ed Beinor (center) are two of the standouts in the Irish line, while Benny Sheridan is one of the fastest of the ball-luggers.

A 608 by Kinton of the Vitamin Savers and a 604 by Willis of the Luserloy Tops were high in the Tappan Stove league.

Armstrong Too Tough for Foe

Retains Title In Bloody Title Brawl With Garcia; Ambers Next for Welter Champion.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Henry Armstrong, closest thing to a perpetual motion machine the U. S. patent office will ever see, still was welterweight champion of the world today—victor over Ceferino Garcia in a raw, bloody brawl which made a sucker out of whoever it was that said a good big man could always lick a good little man.

For Armstrong, the little man, 134 pounds of drive and dynamite, gave one of the great exhibitions of his great career in Madison Square Garden last night against Garcia, the big man, and won all the way. Standing in the haze of smoke at the ringside, Promoter Mike Jacobs announced that Armstrong, like Alexander, had whipped so many people he sighed for new worlds to conquer.

Two Little Men.

So, come February or March, Henry the Hammer defends his welterweight championship against Lou Ambers. A little man is going to fight a little man—two boys who barely come up to the lightweight limit of 135 pounds are going to fight for the welterweight title of 147 pounds. And if there is a welterweight who doesn't like it, he can take the winner and start saying his prayers now.

Armstrong, lightweight and welterweight champion, defeated Ambers this fall in a fight that left the canvas red with their blood. It was a hair-line decision and the customers will come back, begging for somebody to take their money, when the boys go at it again.

Armstrong met and mastered the best of the welterweight challengers last night while 13,000 persons watched the blood course down Garcia's face and marveled at the little champion who could give away so much weight and still plow in to force the fighting. Garcia weighed 12 pounds more than Armstrong; he stood two inches taller and had almost three inches advantage in reach. He brought to the ring his famed bolo punch, a corkscrew right uppercut that was supposed to be advance notice for the ambulance to turn on the siren.

Twice Armstrong was in danger last night and twice his heart commanded "Go on!" and he did go on, fighting like a fool with his left eye swollen into a purple mass, a one-eyed man who had nothing left but two fists—and a heart.

The first was in the sixth round. Garcia, driven into his own corner and dripping blood from a slit over his left eye, reached to the floor and brought up a right that landed smack on Armstrong's chin and almost lifted him from the floor. Quicker than these words can be written, Armstrong bounced his feet on the canvas and, giddy as a goon, tore in pumping left and right hand blows to the body.

Tested In 12th.

Armstrong's next trial by fire came in the 12th. He whistled across a right to Garcia's jaw and swarmed in with a left to the head. Apparently he thought this was going to be the kill. But clear up from the floor again Garcia brought that bolo right uppercut and this time it caught Armstrong flush on the jaw. Henry rocked like a centenarian in the old ladies' home. But only for a fraction of a minute. Then he ducked his head down behind his left shoulder and rushed out fighting, driving Garcia to the ropes.

Otherwise it was all Armstrong. The decision of the two judges and Referee Arthur Donovan was unanimous.

CO-OPERATION is sought by the Ohio Fuel & Gas on a check on game it has liberated in this territory. The company is providing a commendable service ofr the nimrods. Hunters are urged to show their appreciation by cooperating with the company. The company operates a pheasant farm in Otsego, Guernsey county, and the birds are released in counties where the company operates. Two tags of O.F.G.-liberated birds have been turned in to us. One was shot near Rome and the other along the Clearfork in Weller township. If you have any of the tags, we'll be glad to return them to the company for you to aid in hastening its survey.

It's not too late to investigate the bargains on our guns . . . or trade-in values. We have the largest collection of guns in Mansfield.

Remember, the pheasant season goes out Wednesday. There are still plenty of birds on the loose, and don't be discouraged if you haven't gotten your limit. And don't forget our "tail feather" contest. We're offering prizes for the longest, you know.

It might also be mentioned today that whether you carry a gun or not, the Ohio game laws require that you must have a license to accompany a hunter on his trek for game, despite the fact that you may have no other purpose than to get exercise.

Now's the time to buy hunting equipment. We have your every need. Visit our store.

Ducks with white on their wings are not black mallards. They are scoters. Or did you know?

Beautiful pictures: A duck marsh at dawn . . . ringneck pheasants out strolling . . . a pointer and a setter dog holding on quail.

Two lost hunting tags have been turned in to us. One of them might belong to you. They are LT-746 and ED-101.

REVOLTA, HOGAN TIED IN CAROLINA TOURNEY

COLUMBIA, S. C. — (INS) — Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., and Johnny Hogan, White Plains, N. 10 Jitterbugs Compete Tonight on Theater Stage.

The jitterbugs—10 of them—will be the center of attraction tonight at the Ohio theater when the third "hot feet" contest is held on the stage of the theater.

Five couples, all from Mansfield, will compete tonight for $22.50 in cash prizes which are awarded every Saturday night at the Ohio. The elimination contests started three weeks ago and continue through Dec. 17. The final contest, in which the elimination winners compete for $50, will be held Dec. 24.

The contestants choose their own jitterbug dances and each couple has the stage to itself to demonstrate it. The audience acts as judge. At the final contest selected judges in the audience will decide the winners.

MINOR PRICE SHIFTS RULE EARLY MARKET

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Woolworth Among Issues Unchanged to Shade Higher.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Fractional price shifts either way ruled in today's early stock market proceedings.

At a quiet opening issues unchanged to up a shade included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Woolworth, Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, Texas Corp. and Montgomery Ward.

A trifle lower were Western Union, N. Y. Central, Loew's, Consolidated Edison, Chrysler and American Can.

Trading forces, in their search for market trend clues, noted the federal reserve figures for the week ended Wednesday which disclosed excess reserves of member banks had climbed to a record high of $3,350,000,000.

On the other hand, reserve bank statements showed another drop in commercial loans. This item was off $12,000,000 for the week, the sixth consecutive weekly decline.

The federal reserve board's latest survey found industrial production continued to increase "sharply" in October and in the first three weeks of November.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO —(AP)— For the fourth consecutive day, excluding the Thanksgiving holiday, a strike of C. I. O. union yard workers tied up Chicago's huge stock yards. No livestock quotations were available. The hog run was 11,000 less than a week ago. The U. S. department of agriculture estimated 5,000 hogs would be received here tomorrow, 500 cattle and 2,000 sheep.

Sub-Freezing Weather to Lift Monday; Storm Takes 84 Lives In Nation.

Most of the snow and ice had disappeared today from highways in the Richland county area.

While the midwest restored its transportation facilities today following the heavy snowfall two days ago, the eastern seaboard prepared for a further onslaught of the snow and cold.

Frigid weather prevailed generally, however, from the east coast to the Rocky mountains. Snow-packed roads remained a menace to week-end travelers, particularly in rural areas.

Airplanes and trains moved again on schedule. But transportation still was slowed somewhat by snow drifts in the east, but main highways in all states were open. Communications networks suffered relatively minor damage.

Traffic accidents on ice-glazed streets and deaths due to overexertion added to the toll of lives.

Hundreds of automobiles remained stalled in the blizzard area, stretching roughly from New England to Alabama and as far west as the Great Lakes.

On the other side of the continent, temperatures which ranged down to 40 degrees below zero a week ago in interior Alaska soared unseasonably high. A general thaw began, and the temperature at Fairbanks rose to 36.

The storm already has caused 25 deaths in New York, and the metropolitan area today dug out of snowdrifts six feet deep in some places.

Temperatures were far below normal from the Rocky mountains to New England. It was eight degrees above zero in Denver, Colo., 10 above at Duluth, Minn.; 14 above at Boston, and 22 above in New York City.

Dems Propose State Supervision of Relief Program

HOPKINS MAPS SHIFT IN WPA, CAPITAL HEARS

Democratic Senators Suggest Administration by Bi-Partisan Boards.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A proposal that administration of relief be turned over to bi-partisan state boards came from a group of Democratic senators today amid reports that President Roosevelt might ask changes in present relief machinery.

Senator Burke (D., Neb.) said that Senator Bailey (D., N. C.) was drafting a bill to decentralize relief and that several Democratic senators who have been critical of administration policies had agreed to support it.

Meanwhile, informed persons said numerous changes in WPA and allied programs were being discussed by Harry Hopkins, the relief administrator, and other administration officials.

Recommendations Due.

They added that nothing definite has been decided, but that there was considerable likelihood some changes would be approved and recommended to the new congress by the president.

As explained by Burke, the Bailey measure would establish bipartisan relief commissions in each state to administer relief funds through bipartisan boards in each county.

The states would be required to contribute toward relief costs and provision would be made for a gradual "tapering off" of federal expenditures as the states became able to take care of their needy.

There already had been indications that relief would be a subject of major controversy in the new congress.

Senator McNary of Oregon, the senate minority leader, said yesterday Republicans would concentrate their efforts on turning the administration of relief back to the states and also would demand an investigation of reports of politics in WPA.

Burke said Democrats backing the Bailey measure would welcome Republican support, but added:

"This is a Democratic move, conceived by Democrats and sponsored by Democrats.

"The particular object of this plan is to accomplish economy. There can be no doubt that relief can be administered more economically by boards that are on the ground than from Washington."

Loses Fight For Share of $31,750 Paid Roosevelt

BOSTON —(U.P.)— A Boston insurance broker has lost the initial skirmish in his legal battle to obtain a $31,750 commission shared by James Roosevelt.

A superior court auditor found that Arthur D. Cronin had no claim to the commission, which was paid in 1934 for the placing of an $850,000 insurance contract by the National Shawmut bank.

Auditor F. Delano Putnam found that the contract was placed so that young Roosevelt would share in the commission, but held that the bank was not influenced by the fact that his father was president.

Putnam stated, however, that young Roosevelt's name was put first in the Boston insurance firm name, Roosevelt & Sargent, "because his father was at that time governor of New York . . . and his family connection was an important consideration."

Cronin's suit to recover the $31,750 in commission for time sales automobile insurance policies placed by the bank now will be referred to a single superior court justice by stipulation of plaintiff's counsel.

HIT 'FRAUD' IN VAN RAIL SALE

Suit Names Ball, Asks Damages Totaling $5,000,000.

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—Sale of the vast Van Sweringen railroad empire to a syndicate composed of New York financiers was attacked today on the grounds of fraud in a $5,000,000 damage suit filed in federal court here against George A. Ball, Muncie, Ind., multi-millionaire.

The complaint named as a co-defendant the George and Frances Ball foundation, charitable and benevolent organization formed by the Muncie man shortly after his acquisition of the Van Sweringen brothers' rail and realty interests in 1935.

Plaintiffs are Robert R. Young of Newport, R. I., Allen P. Kirby of Convent, N. J., and the Seaboard company, Ltd., of Nassau, Bahamas Islands.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates was calling the signals this morning—and it was one down and six to go. Bates reported that at the end of his first week of "passing the hat" for $700 with which he plans to purchase two-way radio equipment for the city's police cruisers, the fund was at the $100 mark. "And its all in the bank," the chief said.

Jean Briant, 42 Sturges avenue, can testify to the efficiency of the Mansfield postoffice . . . She has lived here only five months and is not listed in either the telephone book or city directory, but yesterday she received a letter which carried no address except the name of the city, and both her first and last names were misspelled.

When Marianne Stander introduces her house guest as "Martha Washington," everyone waits to find out the catch, but there isn't any. The Dallas, Tex., girl has the same name as the wife of the first president and is a descendant of the first Washington in America. When County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe distributed free rivets to purchasers of dog tags last year, his friends joshed him about using the rivets as "bait" in his campaign for re-election. Perhaps it is to prove to them that he was sincere last year, but Wolfe, re-elected without opposition, today was sealing hundreds of the rivets in envelopes and will give them away again when dog tags go on sale next month. Two rivets, enough to attach a tag to the dog's collar, will be distributed to each purchaser in a small envelope bearing "Compliments of Norman L. Wolfe."

Although Floyd Dent, area scout executive, who was shot while hunting near Tiffin Tuesday, had 18 pieces of shot removed from his face and body in a Tiffin hospital, he is still walking around with some of the shot in his body. Yesterday he had three other pieces removed from his hands at General hospital, and since then he has discovered there are still two pieces in the side of his face, and at least one in the index finger of his left hand.

TOWED TO SHORE

Vessel With 25 Students on Board Reached by Guards.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The coast guard cutter Mendota early today reached the Barkentine Marsala, disabled off the Virginia coast with 25 merchant marine students aboard, and prepared to tow the ship to Norfolk.

Storms swept two of the Marsala's five masts away, and left her, without radio equipment to signal for aid, in distress about 25 miles off Cape Henry, Va.

The Marsala, 436 feet long, and claimed to be the largest sailing ship in the world, is used for training merchant marine officers. She is owned by the American Nautical academy, and during the past summer has had as many as 1,500 students aboard. No list of present personnel was immediately available at the academy's headquarters in the capital.

BOY INJURED AS SLED HITS AUTO

First Coasting Accident of Season Reported on McPherson Street.

Eleven-year-old Billy Owen, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Owen, 166 McPherson street, was nursing a sore head and shoulder today as the result of an accident yesterday when his sled struck the side of a passing machine while he was coasting in the street near his home.

Police said that the boy, coasting on Howard street with several other children, had just coasted across the intersection of McPherson street, when Howard Herrick, R. D. 1, Mansfield, drove past. Herrick attempted to avoid striking the youth and swerved his machine to the opposite side of the street, police reported. Billy struck the wheel of a trailor attached to the car.

STOVE BLAMED IN TWO DEATHS

Children Burn to Death Near Xenia Despite Efforts of Parents to Save Them.

(By Associated Press)

XENIA — A cookstove was blamed today for a fire which caused the deaths of two children despite attempts of their frantic parents to rescue them from their burning farm home near here late yesterday.

Coroner H. C. Schick said the stove set fire to the one-story frame house of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Shively and that smoke probably suffocated their children, Billy, 4, and Marceal, aged 18 months.

Discovering the fire while at work in a field, the couple dashed inside the smoke-filled structure.

Mrs. Shively tripped over the body of her daughter. Shively rushed repeatedly into the blazing home but could not find his son.

Neighbors forcibly prevented him from returning just before the building collapsed.

STATE PROMISES 2 NEW ROADS COSTING $265,000 IN DAM AREA

Construction of two new highways to cost $265,000 in the Pleasant Hill dam area of Richland county was virtually assured today with the promise of Ivan R. Ault, acting state highway director, that bids on construction of the routes probably would be requested within the next month.

County commissioners and County Engineer Howard C. Sword, who have sought the new highways for several months, said work on the routes probably would be started by the middle of January.

The entire expense of the construction will be paid by the state highway department and the federal government, since the routes will replace others closed to permit flooding of a large area in the Newville district.

Completion of the roads, to provide outlets for a number of farmers in Worthington and Monroe townships, will permit further flooding of the land back of the Pleasant Hill dam, one of a series in the Muskingum Conservancy district, county officials said.

The highways, aggregating about 13 miles, will be of rock construction, treated against dust.

One of the routes, a continuation of state route 95, is maintained by the state, while the other will be a county road.

The state route, known as the Perrysville-Butler road, is approximately nine miles long. The section to be re-built is between Newville and Perrysville.

The county route, which will replace an old cement road in the conservancy area, is approximately four miles long and extends from Newville to the Pleasant Hill dam.

NEARLY READY

Y. M. Pool to Be Ready For Use Again Next Month.

Reconditioning of the swimming pool at the Y. M. C. A., closed for the past 10 years, is expected to be completed within the next 10 days, Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary, announced today.

It is hoped to have the pool ready for use by Dec. 7, Chapman said. Repainting and repairing of the room is expected to be completed by the first of next week, and workmen are now painting the bottom and sides of the pool with a cement coating. New ventilating equipment is being installed, and installation of a new filter plant is expected to be completed next week.

The pool was closed 10 years ago, due to the lack of funds to purchase a filtration plant required by the state board of health. When repairs are completed, the pool will come up to state health specifications.

LAFF-A-DAY

"Sh-h-h! Be very, very quiet, dear. I finally got the baby to sleep!"

I'LL BARE ALL, STRIP-TEASER TELLS PROBERS

Un-Americanism Investigators Would Get 'Dope' on Parties If They Go to Columbus.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—An exploratory wing of the Dies congressional committee resumed an investigation of affairs educational today after Gypsy Rose Lee of the "strip-tease" conditionally accepted an invitation to testify about Hollywood.

"I'll bare everything — if the committee will come to Columbus," roguishly remarked Miss Lee at the state capital, where she is appearing in a theater.

Rep. Harold Mosier (D-Ohio), member of the committee investigating un-American activities, had asked the actress by telephone to come to Cleveland by plane for an interview concerning a movie capital campaign for funds for the Spanish government forces.

"I can't go—I got four shows a day here," Miss Lee commented. "I got a whole company depending on me. And the flying weather's bad."

'Not un-American.'

While describing the incident as "a big joke," the shapely exponent of expose said:

"Maybe we did give parties out there to raise money for poor kids and women in China and Spain. Is that un-American? I thought it was the American creed to help the downtrodden."

Miss Lee recalled that another film actress, tender in age but strong at the box office, was once mentioned in a Dies committee hearing.

"It's the first time I ever got billing with Shirley Temple," she exclaimed, "and I think it's marvelous."

Mosier and Rep. Noah Mason (R-Ill.) are conducting an inquiry here as a special Dies sub-committee into alleged Communist activities in Ohio schools. Some of those questioned probably will appear later in Washington before the entire committee, Mosier said.

Among persons questioned yesterday, Mosier said, was a Western Reserve university student who described activities of the American Student Union, labelled a "Communist front" organization by the congressman. Names of witnesses are withheld.

OPEN BOND BIDS

Auditor, Ill at Home, Comes To Office To Check Offers.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley had under consideration today the bids of two financial firms on $19,350 in street assessment bonds which will be issued to finance the property owner's share of the cost of improvements on nine city streets.

The bids were opened yesterday afternoon by Kelley who made a special trip from his home where he has been confined under a physician's care for the past two weeks.

The auditor said that three bids had been entered for purchase of the bonds, but that the proposal submitted by Seasongood and Mayer, of Cleveland, with an interest rate of 1½ per cent and a premium of $11.85 had been ruled out because its check was drawn on a bank outside the city.

The other bids were submitted by the Citizens National Bank and Trust company of Mansfield and John A. McCann, representing Saunders, Stiver and company of Cleveland. The Citizen's bank bid was 2½ per cent interest rate and a premium of $10. The Cleveland firm offered a 2¼ per cent interest rate and a premium of $27.75.

Not That It Matters

Problem of the European Refugee—And Story of a Fugitive From Ohio Laws

—By JANE WILLIAMS

THERE was so much for most of us to be thankful for on Thanksgiving day, and one thing that even the humblest, most unfortunate American could be grateful for—that he isn't a Jew living in Central Europe.

There is no misfortune in the world, no personal tragedy, that can equal that of the Jew in Central Europe today. Few Americans can even imagine the scope of the tragedy which has encompassed these people, nor the dark destiny which pursues them at every turn.

Americans can and will help to rehabilitate these persecuted and helpless victims of a world gone haywire—but for the mutual good of American workers and Central Europe refugees, the rehabilitation should take place in some land where the latter can start with a clean slate in politics and economics, where their common problems will inspire them to build a new nation that will reflect their common ideals and traditions.

For just as sure as human nature is human nature, any attempt to influence Congress to lift immigration bars in America will result in a wave of resentment against the very persons who would benefit by it.

But this is true—that if the Semitic people of Europe are given a land of their own, are provided with necessary equipment for a start, are encouraged and aided by the Christian and humanitarian nations, they will emerge victorious, for no other people in the world have more initiative or greater ability to overcome handicaps and make good.

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE: I never knew until after the misdemeanor, that I had been breaking the law all day Thursday. The Head of The Williams Clan went hunting and I donned heavy boots and warm coat and went with him. Not to carry a gun, not even to help carry the game, but just to walk beside him over the snow-blanketed fields and through the woods, to look at the sky and be glad that I was alive and lived in America instead of Europe where there is no such thing as personal liberty.

But I have since learned that I was breaking the law every step of the way. You just can't walk out over the hills for the fun of breasting a November wind and keeping step with a guy who would have been a Daniel Boone if he had been born a couple hundred years earlier. That is, you can't do it without paying $1.25 for the privilege. In other words, you can't walk with a hunter unless you have a hunting license, regardless of whether you are hunting or not.

Sometimes I think we are trying to keep step with Europe in the matter of personal liberty.

WHEN Douglas Corrigan flew his nine year old crate from San Francisco to the Hollywood airport, to use it in his motion picture, which has been tentatively titled, "The Flying Irishman," the United States government forced him to seal up the extra gas tanks before giving him a flying permit.

Probably felt that if he had gas enough to take him only to Hollywood there wouldn't be so much danger of his landing in Pago Pago.

BALLAD OF A HOBO

have you ever sat by the r. r. track and watched the empties coming back, lumbering along with a groan and a whine—
smoke strung out in a long gray line, belched from the panting enjun's stack
Just empties coming back?

I have—and to me the empties seem like dreams i sometimes dream of a person—or munny or maybe fame—
my dreams have all returned the same, singing along the homebound track
just empties coming back.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Nazi Atrocities Shocking Because U. S. Considered Germany Civilized Land

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Some Americans are beginning to ask why the Nazi atrocities should cause any more horror in the civilized nations than was caused by the massacres and deportations and the suppression of religion in Soviet Russia and by the butchering of priests and nuns, the burning of churches and the persecution of Catholics in Spain, and the oppression of Catholics in Mexico.

In a wry way the feeling about the horror in Germany is a compliment to the Germans. They had been regarded as a highly civilized people, and the regime which is doing all this constantly boasts of its civilization.

Russia, on the other hand, was a very backward nation from which the rest of the world expected nothing better. The masses were beastly ignorant and verminous, and it cannot be forgotten that the revolution and the program of atrocity came abruptly after Russion soldiers had been sent into battle without bullets for their rifles against well-armed German troops.

In Spain the people were ignorant, too, but there were other factors. For one, the masses, to quote an eminent Catholic publicist, had been driven to apostasy, by poverty, destitution and injustice and had grown to hate the church because they hated the friends of the church who exploited them and whom the church did nothing to rebuke or correct. Moreover, The civil war in Spain was promoted and backed by Fassist Italy and Nazi Germany.

There were atrocities just as horrible on the rebel side, and, anyway, this was a war in hot blood between two armed factions which being a civil war, inevitably produced appalling inhumanity on both sides.

As to Mexico, our general public has not much information, but Mexico is another country of mass ignorance, and the Germans would resent being compared with the masses of Mexico in this respect.

In Germany the people are intelligent, the standard of education is high and there is no excuse of hot blood. Yet the Germans have carried on these ferocious activities for years and now have come to the point of threatening to extinguish 700,000 people "by fire and Sword."

Our communists, of course, will deny that there were ever any massacres or other atrocities in Russia and will argue that the confiscation of property and the imprisonment, degradation and deportation of those who owned it was a work of nobility on the ground that the property belonged to the people and was then devoted to their uses.

Communism and Nazism are alike in this respect, however. The Nazis claim that the property of the Jews really belong to the people. They say they will use it for the purposes of their government, which was driven to these confiscations by its necessities, not by indignation over the assassination in Paris. The assassination was just the pretext. They may confiscate Catholic church property next and may eventually even extinguish Catholics by "fire and sword."

The Russian atrocities also were carried out in cold blood, but the Germans professed to be aghast at such conduct and have held themselves to be better people than the Bolsheviki. Americans gave them credit for that, too.

That is why the Nazi atrocities are so much more shocking.

ARCHBISHOP URGES RELIGIONS TO UNITE AGAINST SUBVERSIVENESS

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The Catholic hierarchy's newly-announced program to educate 3,000,000 parochial students in "enlightened American citizenship" was suggested today by one of the prelates as an example by which other religions might unite "in concrete action against a common enemy, subversiveness."

The Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, archbishop of Cincinnati, declared in an interview that world-wide protest against persecutions of "Jew and Gentile, Protestant and Catholic," may serve as indication that essential differences between religious faiths are "of little moment in a common cause."

Predicting the new program would be put in operation in Catholic schools and universities when the next school year opens, Archbishop McNicholas termed it "to my knowledge the first definite step in a campaign which all Americans must undertake against Communism, Fascism, and Bolshevism."

(The program was announced in Washington Thursday by Dennis Cardinal Dougherty).

Archbishop McNicholas said the plan encompassed new text-books "being written now," new courses of study, and increased personnel in Catholic educational institutions.

The prelate lashed at policies of "mad-man Hitler." He observed "there is little essential difference between his brand of Fascism and the Bolshevism of Stalin."

"We may make scant allowance in behalf of Mussolini," the archbishop added. "He at least acknowledges belief in a supreme being."

Anti-social doctrines, while "forever existent," achieved new emphasis in post-war years "in which the world suffered a moral breakdown," Archbishop McNicholas observed.

DR. BROWN DIES

Oberlin Theologian Addressed Youth Forum In May.

Dr. Robert E. Brown, professor of practical theology at Oberlin college, and a speaker in Mansfield on many occasions, died of a heart ailment at Allen hospital in Oberlin yesterday.

An authority on the Northwest Territory, Dr. Brown last spoke in the city May 1 when he addressed the Christian Youth Forum at the First Presbyterian church. The meeting was a part of the city's observance of the 150th anniversary of the territory.

Dr. Brown received nation-wide attention in 1932 as the originator of the "cracked wheat" plan for distributing 40,000,000 bushels of government wheat to families on relief. The plan was carried out after congress had passed a bill making it possible.

He was born in Ontario, Canada, Dec. 17, 1873, and graduated from Oberlin college in 1904. He married a classmate, Miss Mabel Millikan, sister of the world famous physicist, Dr. Robert A. Millikan.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Sunday in First Congregational church, Oberlin, with burial in Westwood cemetery.

REVIVAL OPENS

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow—this is the season of greatest peril on the highways.

One bright spot in this Nazi mess is the firm, decent protest of German-Americans against cruelty and terrorism.

What everybody seems to want is more wages for fewer hours, but what most people need is more wages for more hours.

Christmas Shopping Season Here.

WITH Thanksgiving past, the Christmas shopping season begins. And is there in all the year a more delightful season?

Planning and buying Christmas gifts is surely as much fun as giving and receiving them, and the process lasts longer. The shopping itself is a festival that lasts for a month—a festival of light, color and gaiety that transforms city streets, shop windows and store interiors into bowers of beauty, and amply compensates for any loss of charm in external nature.

It will be a pleasanter shopping season, too, than most of us could believe a few short weeks ago. Business has been picking up astonishingly this fall, and the gain continues. More people are employed right along. More money is getting into circulation. Prices are not high. People can buy again, and their buying in itself speeds up recovery.

"Both business and the public may reasonably look forward to one of the best, if not the best, gift-giving seasons in almost a decade," says Lew Hahn, general manager of the National Retail Dry Goods association.

Toscanini Chooses America.

ARTURO TOSCANINI, world-famous orchestra leader, now joins the growing list of distinguished foreigners choosing the United States as their homeland. Friends say he decided to ask for American citizenship after long and serious deliberation. Last spring he refused to conduct at the Salzburg festival as a protest against Nazi treatment of the Jews.

His present action is a protest against the rising anti-Semitism in Italy, his native land. Last summer he went to Jerusalem to conduct concerts by the Palestine Symphony orchestra, again as an expression of his feeling toward Nazism and Fascism. He has been awarded the American Hebrew Medal for the Promotion of Better Understanding Between Christian and Jew.

Of his various protests against racial prejudice, and of his final break with the world in which he grew up and attained his first great artistic success, Mr. Toscanini has said only:

"It is the duty of everyone to fight and help in this sort of cause according to one's means."

Considering Collective Safety.

SEVERAL peace organizations have started fighting government proposals for strengthening the defenses of the United States and the whole western hemisphere. In a public statement last Sunday they declared:

> "History has proved that battleships and bombing planes cannot stop economic or cultural penetration of nations. Such penetration from abroad can be met only by improving the ties between the nations of the western hemisphere. The job of the United States is to show the American countries a working democracy here and lend a hand to help them raise their living standards so that fascism will have no appeal."

There is danger of a big military program here arousing Latin-American suspicions and fears, they say, resulting in worse, not better relations between the two continents.

There is such a possibility, to be sure, if the matter is not wisely handled. So far, it appears that our government has been in consultation with heads of Latin-American governments, as well as Canadian statesmen, looking to co-operative action. That matter will doubtless be thoroughly discussed at the approaching conference in Peru. It would be a mistake, diplomatically and financially, for our country to attempt alone the military protection of the whole hemisphere, although the primary responsibility is ours because of our wealth, population and power.

Voluntary co-operation by the United States, Canada and the Latin-American nations for united defense of our New World, militarily as well as in our business and cultural life, is plainly the best thing for all of us in these menacing times. We should be able to share the responsibilities on terms fair to all.

Complete pacifism, a refusal to fight or to maintain fighting power, is obviously impossible for practical people in this present world. The only question there can be about it is the degree of armament necessary and the way it is used.

Reasons for Juvenile Delinquency.

THE report of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor that juvenile delinquency cases increased eleven per cent in 1937 is not quite so discouraging as it seems. It does not necessarily mean that eleven per cent more children got into trouble of one sort or another.

"Information obtained from a number of courts," explains the bureau, "indicates that a variety of factors contribute to the variations from year to year in the number of delinquency cases disposed of. These factors include changes in the administrative procedures of the courts, changes in the policies of the police departments and other agencies in referring cases to the courts, and changes in the relationship of the courts to the other agencies in the communities."

In spite of this aspect of the situation, it is tragic that 31,038 children in a single year had to appear before the courts. Society itself should have been arraigned with most of those boys and girls for its crimes of neglect and indifference. The school, the church, the neighborhood, the home, the law, have all been at fault in creating or permitting the causes of delinquency.

A serum extracted from ducks is being presented as a new hay fever remedy—with assurance that it isn't a quack idea.

New York's ancient Sixth avenue el is to be razed—probably by experienced el razers.

It sometimes seems that no scheme is too fantastic to fool some people.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—So quickly was public attention caught by the rearmament excitement that scarcely a flash of notice has been paid to active and very energetic disarmament organizations which will have their say before the next congress adjourns.

Likely enough it will be a forlorn and profitless outburst because the wheels are already rolling on an armament program that started up so fast it well nigh left behind even some of the foremost military leaders.

As late as last August the army chief of staff, General Malin Craig, wrote into his annual report a statement of confidence in progress of the army's air force. Said he, in part:

"Great progress has been made toward the attainment of the Baker board objective. Funds provided in the fiscal year 1939 will permit completion of this objective."

(The late former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker and a committee of generals and civil aeronautics specialists recommended in 1934 that the army air strength be increased by 1,000 planes to a 1940 total of 2320.)

Optimistic Report Outdated.

GENERAL CRAIG'S statement on air armament officially published now for the first time, is as out-of-date as a Civil war musket, although it is only three months since he wrote it.

Its publication now only emphasizes the speed with which the change came. A month or so after Craig's report that the board's goal was nearly reached, President Roosevelt junked its figures as "out of date." He declined to name new figures but others did it for him. In a speech during Thanksgiving week, Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, hinted that defense needs might justify an air fleet of 7,000 or even 9,000 planes, instead of the 2,320 which Craig had accepted as suitable only a few weeks before.

"Yesterday," said Johnson, "We believed that a program calling for 2,320 airplanes of all types by 1940 would protect us against enemies from the air. Today, these figures are far below our immediate needs . . . To meet the tremendous pace that the rest of the world is setting, we must double, yes treble and even quadruple our present air force with the best airplanes that can possibly be produced."

Air Corps Situation Changes.

THERE is a further comparison. In August, General Craig wrote: "The air corps is now being equipped with airplanes and material that are the equal, if not superior to any military planes in design, speed, endurance and suitability for the military use for which intended."

But note the change of pace in November. Now, Assistant Secretary Johnson says: "Our air supremacy is threatened. From Europe came reports of pursuit ships and attack planes of greater speed and better performance. Even the marked superiority of our flying fortresses and our superflying fortresses is challenged."

Such abrupt changes always have given disarmament groups basis for arguments that the armed organizations take advantage of every break to whoop up the cry for greater strength.

Last April peace organizations protested before a house committee that the navy was blowing up a war scare over Japan to justify its billion-dollar naval program. And now fear of totalitarian states in Europe forms the hook on which the expanded air program is hung.

Dissension In Military.

THERE is much dissension among military circles over the need of a whopping defense machine in this country. In pre-Munich days even European writers were a bit puzzled by our tenseness. Jane's of London', world's foremost military publishing house, commented:

"An interesting psychological point is that the government of the United States should be building up an immense air service in spite of the isolationist policy of the government, and in spite of the abandonment of the Philippine Islands to the risks and rigors of self government.

"The United States have nothing to fear from the Atlantic side, and still less from Canada or Mexico. The Hawaiian Islands should not be worth the cost of a major war in the Pacific. And yet the United States have one of the biggest and possibly the most efficiently armed air services in the world."

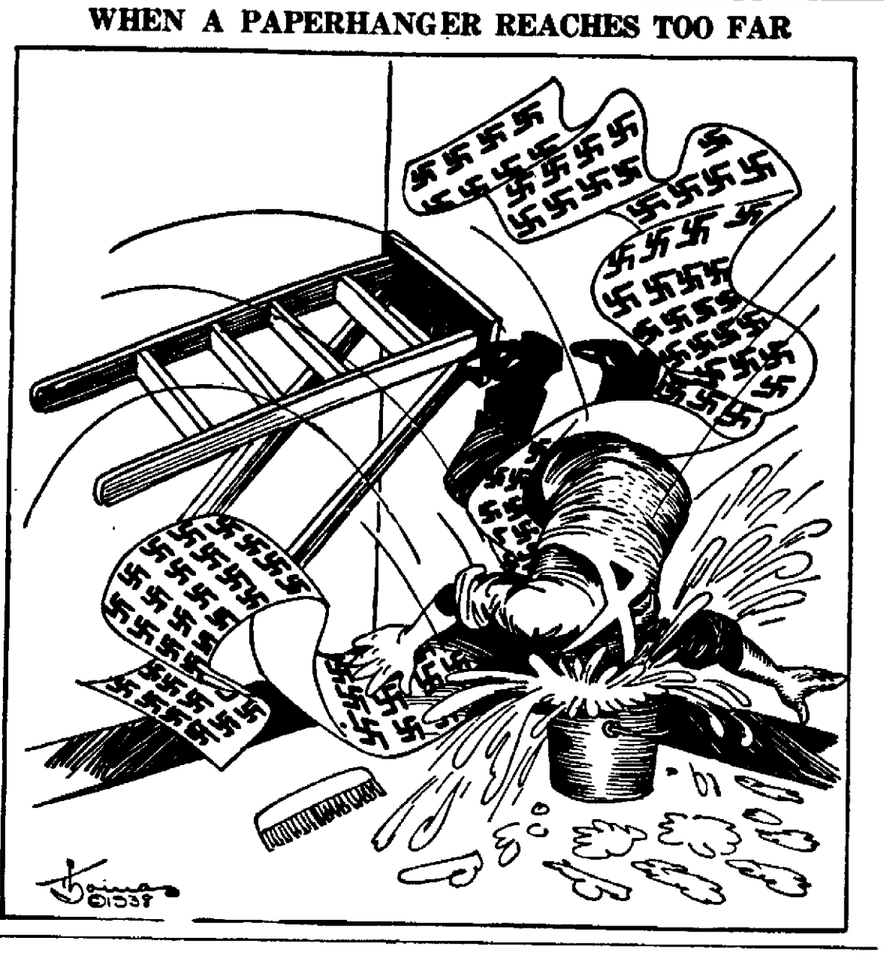
WHEN A PAPERHANGER REACHES TOO FAR



Hard-Boiled Goebbels Is No. 2 Nazi

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—When Hugh R. Wilson, just returning from Germany to make his ambassadorial report to President Roosevelt, gets on into his story, it is a safe bet that our chief executive will be told the Fatherland could do worse than with Herr Hitler, bad as the latter is.

Wilson

Shortly before the program broke out I had a chat with an old friend, long a resident of Leipzig but on a visit in this, his native country. I refrain from naming him or he couldn't go back to his business in Europe. Anyway, I expressed surprise that someone doesn't take a pot-shot at the fuehrer. He immediately would be killed, of course, but there are folk willing to make that sacrifice in such situations as the Germans' present one. I don't contend that assassination is justifiable in any circumstances, but it's committed occasionally in emergencies.

"It would be most deplorable," said my friend, And he proceeded to outline the horrors that would be sure to follow an unceremonious "bumping off" of Herr Adolf.

Calls Hitler Mild.

I'm prepared now to believe him, considering the conditions which have prevailed since the shooting, by a crack-brained Jewish boy, of a German minor diplomatic official in Paris. If Hitler had been the shootee, what mightn't have happened!

"But aside from that," continued my friend, "in the event of Hitler's elimination, Propaganda Minister Goebbels would be certain to succeed him. Now, the democratic world thinks of Hitler as the limit, because he's been more advertised, but he's mild in comparison with Goebbels."

Marshal Goering, the Nazis' military promoter, is spoken of as one of the Reich's toughest characters.

He's hard-boiled all right, according to reliable information. Yet Goering, it appears, is human—sane, companionable, a jolly German. He doesn't have crazy tantrums, like Hitler. He isn't a dottily sour introvert, like Goebbels. He more resembles the late President von Hindenburg, who was quite civilized until Hitler supplanted him.

However, Goering doesn't signify; Hitler ranks him, and, Hitler being blotted out, he would be of less consequence than ever under Goebbels.

This is what the president is likely to hear from Ambassador Wilson.

Wilson probably will not prove to be as vehemently anti-Hitleristic as his predecessor, William E. Dodd, who quit as U. S. ambassador to Berlin and came home because Adolf so disgusted him, and has been anti-Hitleristically-campaigning ever since then. Wilson's language is more diplomatically restrained than Dodd's.

Roosevelt Emphatic.

Nevertheless, President Roosevelt's recent utterances have been about as emphatic as Dodd's have been.

They don't imply that Uncle Sam sees it as his mission to go overseas to correct Hitleristic inhumanities, but they do hint that Uncle Samuel doesn't care to associate with that kind of government.

My guess is that relations definitely have been broken.

My impression also is that F. D. R., materially has popularized himself at home by his attitude.

Latin America instantly reacts, in general, favorably to President Roosevelt's expressions.

Brazil traditionally is pro-Yankee. Next to the U. S., it's the strongest of New World republics. It also is afraid of German influence, having been considerably bothered by it. Argentina, where Germans are numerous, is slightly balky. Ditto Uruguay—but Uruguay's a mere dot on the map. Mainly this hemisphere is solid. Argentina and Uruguay, too, will have to get in line shortly. Even now they're recalcitrant very qualifiedly.

Canada, it goes almost without saying, is 100 per cent Pan-American.

The Pan-American Union ought, all along, to have included Canada.

Now it's doing it. It needn't worry about Argentina and Uruguay; it'll get 'em easily, by force of gravitation.

Let the Old World go berserk. We've got this half of the globe.

Health Advice

Pituitary Is Great Regulator.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

LAST summer the newspapers carried the story of young Eula Herbert of Chochoula, Louisiana, who stopped growing when she was eight years old. At the age of 14 she was four feet tall and weighed 52 pounds. She was taken as a patient at the New Orleans Charity hospital and given extracts of the pituitary and thyroid glands. She rapidly grew until last summer she was four feet four inches tall and weighed 92 pounds.

Such results are difficult to evaluate, but the story serves to call attention to the functions of the pituitary gland which hangs on a stalk from the base of the brain like a small plum. About the size of the end of your thumb, this little structure carries more capacity to influence your happiness and health and the smooth running of your life than any other like amount of tissue in your body.

It has a growth hormone, as the story of Eula Herbert indicates. If one mouse of a litter has its pituitary removed at the age of three weeks, its growth immediately stops. Fourteen weeks later it is less than half the size of its litter mates.

The pituitary also sends out a hormone which influences reproduction. The ovaries of the mouse whose pituitary is removed are completely atrophied at 36 weeks.

Stimulating Hormone.

It also sends a stimulating hormone to the thyroid gland which influences all nutrition. It sends little chemical messengers to the pancreas, the adrenals—to all the other ductless glands. It is the real dynamo of the body.

Popular interest has centered in its influence on growth. Probably all the circus giants and probably all the giants who ever lived had a disease of the pituitary gland.

The growth hormone has been isolated in nearly pure chemical form. It has been used extensively in treatment of dwarfism. Sometimes spectacular results occur, as in the case of Eula Herbert. They are, however, difficult to evaluate, as I said, because one cannot be sure that growth would not have started anyhow, as I heard the distinguished discoverer of the growth hormone say in conversation last winter.

But many experiments and observations are being made with pituitary extract, and we may be on the way to astonishing results.

Two Deficits.

The commerce department estimates that the national income to be produced this year will amount to something more than 60 billion dollars, while the income paid out (in wages and other ways) will be about 64 billion dollars.

This would leave the nation's industry with a deficit of approximately 4 billion dollars. That, strange as it may appear, is just about the estimated deficit for the government in the current fiscal year which will end next June. But one difference, among others, could be mentioned. Industry probably will reduce if not wipe out its deficit by producing more next year. Not even the commerce department can predict as much for the government.—Kansas City Star.

As Others See It

Not So Easy.

It is not remarkable if foreigners do not understand Americans. There are times and occasions when we do not understand ourselves.—Toledo Blade.

Daily Bible Thought

Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?—Matt. 7:16.

What's Happened?

Week-End Summary of Current Events.

AMERICANS prayed, on this Thanksgiving day, for the "unfortunate people in other lands who are in dire distress." The Mother of Parliaments passed a resolution deploring the "treatment suffered by certain racial, religious and political minorities in Europe."

"Why, then," asked an Italian writer who often speaks for Il Duce, "are the great democracies unwilling themselves to open their doors and repopulate their territories with Jews for whom they pretend to dedicate so much verbal pity . . . ?"

The democracies sought to answer that taunt by denying the charge: Britain proposed moving German Jews to British colonies in Africa and South America; backer of the scheme hoped Americans might raise $100,000,000 to finance the migration.

Who—Me?

The migration scheme rubbed Nazis the wrong way, for the land offered to the Jews included Tanganyiki, which used to belong to Germany. Any Jews put on ex-German territory, a German paper said, "are certain at some time to be chased out of there just as out of Germany."

The United Palestine Appeal organization in Washington called the British colonial plan a "mirage." Its spokesman had previously said that Britain's South American colony and much of Africa are too hot for people who are used to German weather.

Most other resettlement proposals met objections, too. Alaska was suggested as a Jewish refuge, but Alaskans didn't like the idea. Mexico's province of Lower California was suggested, but an official said Mexico would oppose that. Jewish leaders proposed that the U. S. take 80,000 refugees at once by "mortgaging" the German immigration quota for the next three years, but a senator replied that an influx of refugees would increase unemployment here.

Us, Too?

In Germany the new pogrom, which started two weeks ago after a Jewish boy assassinated a German official in Paris, continued. Arrests of Jews stopped, but German Jews estimated 60,000 of their comrades were in jail. Reports leaked out that several had been executed in concentration camps.

The paper of Hitler's Elite Guard predicted that poverty soon would drive the Jews to crime, in which case Germany would eliminate "the Jewish underworld . . . with fire and sword." The government announced a 20 per cent levy on Jewish fortunes exceeding $2,000 to pay the $400,000,000 fine imposed for the Paris assassination. Any Jew would have to pay that before he could leave the country, the Nazis ruled, otherwise, it's due next August.

As America's ambassador to Berlin steamed homeward to report this week-end to President Roosevelt, Germany's ambassador left Washington to tell his government about Mr. Roosevelt's "queer attitude toward events in Germany."

Japan's privy council lent moral support to the Nazis, however, by approving a cultural pact with Germany. In Italy, 15,000 Jews were said to have been dropped from public and private jobs. An anti-Semitic decree was published in Nazi-controlled Danzig. France and Germany completed negotiations for an anti-war agreement, and French merchants complained that German Jewish refugees were ruining their business.

And it might happen here, hinted Rep. Martin Dies, of Texas. His congressional committee on un-American activities heard that 135 organizations are contributing to "a rising tide of anti-Semitism and anti-religious feeling in this country.

At Home

Thanksgiving Message.

President Roosevelt, a New Yorker, calls Georgia his "other state" because he spends much time there at the Warm Springs Foundation for infantile paralysis treatment.

Last summer the president asked—in vain—that the voters of his "other state" replace conservative Democratic Sen. Walter George with New Dealer Lawrence Camp.

This week, on his arrival at Warm Springs for a Thanksgiving holiday, the president told newsmen (1) that Georgia is the only state that has failed to co-operate with the federal government in financing public works; (2) that unless his "other state" mends its ways, it will get not another red cent of PWA money.

Score Tied.

A federal judge recently ordered Jersey City officials not to interfere with CIO's rights of speech making in the city parks. In another inquiry into alleged denial of civil liberties in Jersey City, a federal grand jury heard Socialist Norman Thomas tell how he was "kidnaped" and "deported" by Mayor Frank Hague's policemen when he tried to make a speech there last April. After hearing 66 other witnesses, the jury adjourned last week-end without indicting anybody.

Bright Lights.

That "fabulous invalid," the American theater, again has risen from the sickbed, Broadway reported this week, and is enjoying her healthiest season since pre-epidemic days of 1928-29.

Broadway wiseacres call it a trend; but in Times Square's few halls of sanity, the professors say it's just the rising tide of New York World's Fair entertainment.

The theater's lusty little brother, the movies, also shows new vitality.

Helpmate?

Eugene Burckhalter, 47, was found dead last week-end in his car in the garage at his home near White Plains, N. Y. A vacuum cleaner hose led into the car from its exhaust vent. His wife, 44, was held this week on a charge of first-degree manslaughter. The district attorney quoted her as saying she hooked up the hose for him, gave him an egg-nog, took a final snapshot of him, pushed the car's starter button to show him how, and then went shopping.

Abroad

New Rules.

Czechoslovakia, in eight weeks, has been whittled down from an independent nation of 54,196 square miles to a German satellite state of 38,031. Germany got 10,885 square miles, Poland 405, Hungary 4,875.

What's left is now being reorganized as a federated state composed of semi-autonomous provinces of (reading from west to east) Bohemia-Moravia, Slovakia and Carpatho-Ukraine. Each will have its own government with wide powers in local affairs. The central government, in Prague, will handle only such things as defense and foreign relations.

The rules of life in the new Czechoslovakia were described by an observer recently as: "Harder work for less money, and a daily pat on the back for Germany." The most prominent figure in the Prague government now is Foreign Minister Frantisek Chvalkovsky. He believes in co-operation with Germany.

Peace for Spain?

As Spaniards, and their outside help, slogged through another week of war with small gains reported from both sides, peace talk again was heard in foreign capitals. Belgium's Premier Paul Spaak disclosed that his government is thinking of offering to mediate.

Labor

Sit-Down Up.

Can a worker be fired for engaging in a sit-down strike? The Fansteel corporation thought so, and dismissed employes who seized two of its North Chicago buildings in 1937. The National Labor Relations board then claimed authority to order the men reinstated "despite any acts of violence" because of Fansteel's "unfair labor practices." But a federal circuit court agreed with the company that the sit-down was illegal and therefore justified the dismissal of those engaged in it. Now the supreme court, at NLRB's request, has agreed to review the case.

Stockyards Tie-Up.

Two days before Thanksgiving, farmers were advised to curtail shipments of hogs, cattle and sheep to the world's largest livestock market at Chicago. Reason: CIO stock handlers had quit work in a demand for a signed contract providing better pay. White-collared commission men, meanwhile, fed, watered and disposed of 60,000 head of stock already in the pens. When the yards said they would continue in operation, CIO threatened to extend the strike to Chicago's huge meat-packing plants.

Job Notes.

Skilled workers on assembly line jobs requiring a high degree of finger dexterity do better work while listening to sweet music, according to experiments conducted by a Pennsylvania professor.

The hired girl, in most American homes that have one, need a better place to entertain her boy friend, according to a federal servant survey.

People

Birdman Caged.

Bryan Grover, a British engineer, married a Russian girl when employed as a foreign specialist in the Soviet oil industry several years ago. Later he went to Iran, but planned to return to Russia for his wife and then move to England. But his application for a reentry visa was turned down, and he couldn't get permission for his wife to leave. So he took off from Sweden in an attempt to rescue her by plane. He landed near Moshow and his friends learned this week, was clapped into jail.

ORDER DELAYS WILSON RETURN

U. S. Ambassador Assigned to Post as Consultant on German Affairs.

Wilson for well over an hour. Wilson, who was called home to report on the anti-Semitic campaign in Germany, made no statement on his arrival.

State department officials said Wilson would leave Washington probably early this afternoon for Warm Springs, Ga., to "report and confer" with President Roosevelt, who ordered him to return to the United States.

Wilson said later he would arrive in Warm Springs late tomorrow evening and that his plans thereafter were uncertain.

Asked if he intended to spend Christmas in the United States, Wilson smilingly replied:

"I have no plans after seeing the president. It's all up to him."

Talking with reporters, the ambassador declined to make any statement about conditions or the situation in Germany.

"I had a nice trip home," he said. "Beyond that I can't say much."

Deny Stores Will Hire Refugees.

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Reports that large New York department stores intended to dismiss employes and hire German-Jewish refugees in their places were characterized today as propaganda circulated by anti-Semites.

Spokesmen for various stores, while expressing sympathy for German Jews, declared that their present employes could rest assured their jobs were secure. They believed the reports were intended to counteract American sympathy for German Jews and to harm the Christmas trade of stores owned or managed by Jews.

The reports were circulated in the mails but gave no indication where they originated.

Nazi Pawn Shops Get Jewish Jewels.

BERLIN — (AP) — German Nazis today opened a glorified pawnbrokerage business to help hard-pressed Jews raise funds to pay the $400,000,000 fine imposed for the assassination of Ernst Von Rath.

The Berlin Chamber of Industry and Commerce started a bureau on behalf of the economics ministry to take over jewels, art works and other valuable objects from Jews throughout Germany.

The fine's first installment due Dec. 15 is to be cash principally. Many Jews have been assessed 20 per cent of their wealth as part of the fine and will have to liquidate much of their personal property to raise the money.

Measures to ostracize Jews continued to pile up.

Indigent Jews, for example, are not permitted under a new regulation issued by the interior ministry to seek aid from public welfare bureaus but must turn to Jewish welfare agencies.

CITY BALKS AT COPPER'S JOB

Mayor Tells Chief to Have 'No Part' In Supervising Work Of Juvenile Officer.

authorities seemed unable to answer was whether Copper was an agent of the court with full police powers of a duly appointed juvenile officer or whether he was just an agent for the 10 persons whom he had solicited to pay his wages for two months.

Judge Anderson said he was willing to assume full responsibility for the supervision of Copper if the city would not accept him. He added he had not definitely decided whether Copper would be permitted to make arrests.

"However, I intend to go into that matter immediately," he said.

This brought up the question of a bond for Copper. Anderson stated that a bond was not necessary because "Copper is not an employe of the city or county, but an agent for the 10 persons who have contributed to his wages."

Judge Anderson said he "supposed" that the 10 persons would be liable in the event of "misconduct or breach of duty" on the part of the officer.

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott, who explained he did not know the facts concerning the designation of Copper as a special officer "assumed" that if the 10 persons were paying his wages, they would be definitely responsible in case of court action in the line of duty.

Juvenile officers now in the employ of the county are bonded for $1,000 covering faithful duty and good behavior.

It was pointed out by Marriott that Copper's job, created by him being named a special officer by Judge Anderson, carries no police powers and that he would not have the authority to make arests.

Meanwhile Chief Bates said that he would follow the orders issued by Mayor Hunter this morning but that he could not see how the city was assuming any responsibility since Copper had been named by the probate court and was therefore directly responsible to the court.

He said he expected to extend the "fullest co-operation" to Copper.

A Farmer's Diary

A Touch of Earth.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MANY times I have watched the draft horse, when turned out to pasture, choose a bare spot and lie down to roll upon the earth, until it forms a dusty cloud above him, — a horse's moment of supreme delight.

I have seen a pig choose a soft, cool wallow beside a stream and lie there grunting contentedly at long intervals for hours at a time.

The dog hunts a low, bare hollow in the garden and lies there, nose between his paws, asleep.

Our turkeys lie down in the middle of the road and grovel with outstretched wings, until their backs are dusty brown. Then, one by one, they rise and shake and walk away in perfect satisfaction. Pheasants, robins and quails go through the same procedure.

I think I know the instinctive feeling of the barnyard and the wild folk. I am much that same way about my neighbor's rye field. Each time I pass I marvel at the tender, thrifty growth that carpets the rolling earth with velvety green. I long to touch it, to walk upon it, to become a part of its elemental, deep-rooted life.

One evening this week I yielded. I stopped my car and walked into the eastern edge of this wide, fertile field. It was dusk and the air was cool and pleasant. I stooped and touched the tender stalks of rye, then got down on my knees and ran my hands and arms along the drill rows, until they were buried to the shoulder. The soil was soft and moist. A fine, fresh fragrance rose from the long flat blades that disturbed my senses delightfully.

Here, alone, near to the soil, I knew what Antaeus found of strength in the touch of the earth upon his feet. I felt contented and at home. That rye field was a good and satisfying place to be. I have never passed it since unmindful of its closeness to my deeper self.

to be more than 15 years old.

Neighbors, attracted by the noise, called police, and two cruisers were ordered to the scene. They failed to find a trace of the youth, however. He was described as being young but large, and wearing a plaid jacket.

Mrs. Staiger said the youth made no attempt to molest her.

The youthful purse-snatcher made his first appearance Wednesday night, stealing two purses.

His first victim was Miss Mary Bowersock, 8 Gray court, who was robbed while walking on West Fourth street near Bowman. She said the youth grabbed her purse, containing about $3.50 in cash and ran between the houses.

About 25 minutes later, a youth answering the same description, grabbed the purse of Mrs. J. A. Geiger as she neared her home, 173 Park avenue west. She said her purse contained only a small amount of money.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates today assigned Detectives Lee Remy and Oscar Krupp to the case.
